

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A kiosk for providing multiple functions includes a communications port, a microprocessor, a user interface, and a payment device. The microprocessor is operable to connect to a service provider through the communications port and provide multiple functions and services to a user including advertisements, broadcast programs, the ability to purchase merchandise, and the ability to purchase postage.